Collective.
At a regular mass meeting of the Scandinavians in South Minneapolis a few nights since, the pastor having heard that one John Johnson wanted to join the church, said, "Will John Johnson, if present, please stand up?" Nearly all the men present stood up. The bewildered preacher looked around awhile, and then said: "You may sit down, Mr. Johnson. I will call a meeting of you some time next week."

OUT OF SCHOOL LIFE INTO LIFE'S SCHOOL

MEMBERS OF HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATING CLASS RECEIVED DIPLOMAS LAST NIGHT.

CLASS SONG PLEASES

Production Arranged by Miss Jessie Pruner Wins Applause—Miss Josie Austin Delivers Valedictory Address—Other Numbers Well Given.

Fifty-three students departed "Out of school life—into life's greater school" last evening at the high school auditorium when the high school graduates, president of the board of education, presented them with their diplomas, signifying that they satisfactorily completed the work of the high school course. The exercises on the whole were about the best ever presented by a graduating class in the local school.

The class song, which was ably composed by Miss Jessie Pruner, proved to be the best song ever presented by any former class and Miss Pruner is to be complimented for composing such a worthy production. In addition to this it was very well sung and the class acted out the song in a most effective manner. The entire song was lively and free from any note of sadness which has characterized former productions. The valedictory address in a most capable manner. She was distinctly heard her delivery was effective, and she was enthusiastically applauded for her fine presentation. She briefly outlined the years in school in brief half of the class, emphasizing especially what the school board and the faculty have done for them.

The class token was given by Andrew Connell. He carried the address the idea that to help the city and the school together was something that the class should be proud of. The token this year was a purse for furnishing a room in the new hospital. The address was given well.

Many other interesting numbers were on the program. Rev. T. D. Williams said the invocation before the program started. This was followed by an extempore talk on "Admiral Perry" by Harry Ryan. The fact that this year there will be a memorial celebration of the one-hundredth anniversary of the death of Mr. Ryan to select this topic. He was strong on delivery and the address was very interesting.

Fred Cummings followed with an oration on "The Yellow Peril." The oration was based upon present conditions in California concerning the Japanese who are seeking entrance into this country. Mr. Cummings gave this address exceptionally well. Very interesting extempore talk was given by Ralph Schumacher, "Panama and the Panama Canal." He stated that the canal is about sure to be opened by the end of this year. His experience in oratory was plainly shown as he delivered the talk in a creditable manner.

Two illustrative exercises were given. Edward Funk and Orson Loomis described "The Gyroscope." The latter exercise was a large bicycle wheel was used as an example. The other exercise was on "High Pressure Electricity." This talk was given with illustrations by Lee Craig and Joe Ryan. A male chorus, composed of Senior boys sang songs which brought forth much applause. Those who composed the quartet were Ralph Soultman, Harold Mohr, Ben Kuhlman and Leslie Bailey. The most interesting and interesting topics of the evening was given by Joseph Brundage on "The Babcock Butcher Test." This is a topic which deals with agriculture and is entirely new to the public as a whole. Mr. Brundage expounded upon this test and showed the audience the advantages obtained by this useful method.

William O'Connor gave the last oration on "Luther Burbank," the great plant breeder of the world. This was a short oration, but was ably given.

Those who received the sheepskin last evening were: Tracy Whitney Allen, Josie Porter Austin, Eva Myrtle Badger, Leslie Bailey, Frank Caleb Pickard Blodgett, Vesta L. Bradley, Walter Edward Broege, Joseph E. Brundage, Roy C. Cannon, Andrew Cornell, Mary Margaret Connell, Daniel Lee Craig, Fred Rockwell Cummings, Margaret Elin Denning, Violet Marie Dobson, Raymond Charles Edler, John Raymond Edler, Mary Edler, Verna Marie Flannery, Edward August Fink, John L. Groat, Frances Margaret Hall, Helen A. Hebel, Gladys Huginn, Lucile Elizabeth Hyde, Stanley S. Judd, Evelyn M. Kavelage, Hazel Marie Kennedy, Martin Joseph Kennedy, Elsie Josephine Koch, Benjamin W. Kuhlman, Orson E. Loomis, Minnie Emma Teresa McGill, Genevieve Elizabeth McGinley, Marjorie Mildred McGregory, Ernestina McGee, Emily Harriet Mooser, Harold Oliver Mohr, Hazel Estes Myhr, William J. O'Connor, Jessie Marie Pruner, George Razook, Olive Reynolds, Harry Ryan, Joseph Edward Ryan, James C. Siegle, Ralph Childs Sommers, James Stewart Helen Slocum Taylor, Margaret Ellen Thorne, Ruth C. Trumble, Ruth Wilkinson, Lola M. Williams. The annual alumni banquet, which is given by the Janesville high school Alumni association, and the reception tonight promises to be one of the best recent years. The association will be enlarged tonight by the admission of this year's graduating class, composed of fifty-three students. A large crowd of old alumni plan on being present together with the faculty of the school. An interesting program will take place following the banquet, after which dancing will be enjoyed. The class of 1911 and 1912 are planning to attend in a body. Many who graduated in the nineties will also be on hand. Mrs. Rowman has been chosen as the caterer. PRIMARY ELECTION NOW MADE CERTAIN Assured by Entry of Two Candidates Into Field—Mayor Fathers Need Not Enter Primary.

Announcement of two candidates for the office of mayor, other than James H. Rogers, the present incumbent, makes certain that a primary election, which according to the law must be held on July 8, two weeks before the time set for the election on July 22. It is probable that Wallace W. Nash and W. H. Nichols, the two who have thus far entered the race, will have other rivals at the primary. Mayor James A. Rogers need not participate in the primary on July 8, as the recall provisions in the commission government statute his name is automatically placed upon the official ballot for the special election. The primary is to determine who will be the mayor or more who seek his position will be his opponent at the final contest on the fourth Tuesday in July. If but one opponent to Mayor Rogers had entered the field, no primary election would have been necessary. Without occasioning very serious delay in the construction of the proposed concrete bridge over the Rock river on Milwaukee street, it would have been impossible to hold a primary on the question of issuing the necessary bonds at the same time as the special election, called in consequence of the failure of a recall petition. This delay would not have been less than three weeks and would prevent starting actual construction until well into the month of August. The council considers it of vital importance that the construction of the bridge be started and completed at the earliest possible date consistent with good workmanship and for that reason it has called the bond election for the year in school in the city. The time of notice will permit.

OLD TIME ENGINEER DIES IN KENOSHA

John Ward, One of the Northwestern Line's Veterans, Passed Away After Long Illness.

Mrs. K. Keating and Mrs. A. Smith were called to Kenosha today by the death of their brother, John Ward, who has been in poor health for the past two years. Mr. Ward was born in Kane, N. H., in 1848, and entered the service of the Northwestern Railway company as a brakeman at Janesville in 1864, serving in this capacity for seven years. He then went into the engine service and fired for two years when he was promoted to engineer. This was in January 1873, and he served continuously for thirty-seven years. During this long period he had the distinguished reputation of never having served any time off for censure.

After forty-six years of faithful service, during which time he won the esteem of everyone with whom he came in contact, he retired from active service on the Northwestern as well as the rank and file of the railway men as "Jack" Ward and at the time of his retirement high tribute was paid to his record of veteran engineer by the Northwestern officials. Mr. Ward was especially well known to the traveling public in Kenosha as for more than twenty years he was on the run between Kenosha and Chicago, and his death will cause genuine sorrow for no man was better known to the public of Kenosha.

MAJ SECURE LICENSES FROM THE GAME WARDEN

Non-resident clam diggers may secure their licenses as required by the new state law, from the state game warden, according to Game Warden William Mason. Inquiry was recently made of the county clerk as to the place where such licenses were issued by one of the men who is operating in Rock river. Mr. Lee had no information at hand in regard to the law but telephoned to the state game warden's office, making no response. He then communicated with the secretary of state who promised to send the desired information the latter part of this week.

PROTEST IS FILED AGAINST ANY FILL

C. S. and C. W. Jackman Complain Against Proposed Shortening of Milwaukee Street Bridge.

Protest against the acceptance by the Railway Commission of that part of the Chicago street bridge plans providing for a fill thirty feet wide at the west end of the proposed structure, between the present bank and the concrete wall underneath the Jetten bridge, has been filed with the commission by C. S. and C. W. Jackman through their attorneys, Richmond, Jackman and Swanson of Madison. It is claimed that a fill such as that proposed would be a detriment to the city and no right to make one. A copy of the letter has been forwarded to the city clerk by the commission, who state that they will be pleased to have the city represented at the hearing to be held in this city on June 25th, by such officers and citizens as may care to be heard.

A Moment With the Ladies. (No Smoking Please.) Lady fan, cheering the play that is speedy. Clapping your hands when O'Casey connects. Roasting the ump when decisions are speedy. List to the trend of the twitter we spill. Gather the import of this, we implore you, Lady bug, "fannie," believe us, we're FOR you!

Won't Be Fooled Any More. Ponie Push, the Detroit shortstop, isn't going to let them fool him any more with slow ones. Bush is one of the fastest fielders in our national pastime and a rabbit on the bases.

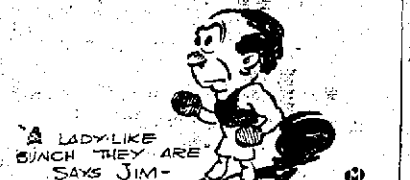

For quite a long time, however, he has been pretty weak with the hickory. He simply never could connect with the slow floating ones and opposing pitchers learned his little secret. Bush blames it on Eddie Summers, who used to delight in handing him the slow, hesitating ball in batting practice just because they made him so mad. The news spread and soon every pitcher was giving him the won't-it-ever-get-here delivery and Bush was on the verge of neurasthenia. But now he has devised a way of putting the cleaner on the hook-worm balls and henceforth they can't give him enough. He's bunting 'em now. He finds it works great and he likes it. And as Donie is a lively proposition at getting down to first it's a cinch they will soon weary of watching him beat out bunts.

He has also been very active in charitable affairs, a willing performer at benefits and gives freely to good causes.

Are Fighters Too Ladylike? One Jim Corbett, who every once in a while gets feisty and has to break into print, says it's a pretty ladylike bunch of scoundrels we've got nowadays. You boo real angrily at 'em and they run, he says. And moreover, no real fighter of any class and in good physical shape would die of a single blow. McCarty was perhaps the pick of present heavies - and a good boy, says Jim, but he hurt himself out. Hitting the gasoline too hard was what put McCarty against the ropes, says Jim, and had he been in good physical shape the tragedy would have been averted.

ELABORATE FLY SCREEN

Canopy Spreads Over Door and Fan Opens at the Side.

It will take a hardy and persevering fly to get in through a door that is equipped with all the apparatus designed by an Iowa woman. As everyone knows, it is impossible to keep flies out of a house, no matter how carefully it is screened, because every time a door is opened a detachment that have been sitting on it fly in. But here is something that should keep them out. A folding canopy that is attached to the top of the screen door and the top of the door

SCARES FLIES AWAY frame, unfolds as the former opens and forms a guard there. Along the outer edge of the door frame is a folding apron that normally is closed against the frame, but that drops of its own weight when the door opens and creates a draft that blows the pests away until the door has time to swing to again.

He Didn't Mind. "I suppose, Jerry," said the eminent statesman, looking through his pocketbook for a new dollar bill, "like a lot of other people nowadays, you would rather have clean money?" "Oh, that's all right, Senator," said the cabman. "I don't care how you made your money."

FAIR CANOEISTS STRUGGLE FOR HONORS ON CHARLES RIVER

Thousands cheered the fair canoeists of the Lasell Seminary of Boston in the war canoe race a few days ago between the Reds, captained by Edna Mathias of Joliet, Ill., and the Blues, captained by Mildred Westervelt of South Bend, Ind. All along the banks of the river over the mile course of the race friends and relatives of the girls, waving pennants and the favorite colors of the crews cheered loudly for the young ladies. The girls were dressed in white middie blouses and wore hair ribbons according to crew. The Reds, shown in the accompanying picture, were the winners.

Outpouring. The garret seemed suddenly empty, as I closed and sealed a letter to you.

SOUTHERN SUPREMACY.

Down in Washington they are having a merry war all to themselves over the tariff revision. Telegraphic reports announce that the republican majority in the senate plan a long fight on the measure now before them for consideration. We are told that Senator La Follette plans to make the oratorical effort of his life against the present measure and will offer a substitute one; that his effort will take a week to deliver, and those who know La Follette feel certain he means what he says and the full week will be taken up.

But, meanwhile, "times have changed." Not since the days of Pierce and Buchanan has the delegation of "southern brigadiers" been in the saddle and, controlling the destinies of the country. The funny part of the whole affair is that no one seems to care, but on the whole rather enjoys the situation immensely.

What a wailing of the bloody shirt there would have been if, twenty years ago, all the important chairmanships but one in the lower house of congress had been given to southerners. But now the announcement of the house committee lists, turning over the organization of that body almost wholly to representatives of the southern and border states, has failed to bring forth a single protest or even attract much attention.

The North has changed and the South has changed. The differences between them have almost disappeared. As a tariff revisionist, Mr. Underwood is far more moderate than Roger C. Mills was. Chairman Simmons of the senate finance committee, even classed as a semi-protectionist, in a few days the veterans of the Union and Confederate armies will meet and shake hands across what is left of the trenches on the field of Gettysburg.

The quiet acceptance by the country of southern supremacy in Washington was the last thing needed to demonstrate the fact that the wounds inflicted by the terrible struggle of the '60's have almost entirely healed.

THE CITY OF DAYTON.

The city of Dayton, Ohio, with a flood loss of one hundred million dollars or more, started out not long ago to raise a fund of two million dollars to be used in protecting the city by dams and reservoirs so that no similar catastrophe could ever occur again.

The plan was enthusiastically endorsed and last Sunday afternoon and evening was devoted to a great mass meeting on the grounds of the National Cash Register company, and the last six hundred thousand dollars was raised. Every church in the city was closed for the occasion and subscriptions varying from twenty-five to ten thousand dollars were freely offered. Payments are distributed through the next two or three years, and the work to be done will be laid out and supervised by government engineers.

It is an old saying that the Lord helps those who help themselves, and the strictest type of Dayton has commenced to repair their great losses, and safeguard the city for time to come. This is the spirit which wins success.

John H. Patterson, president of the National Cash Register company, was the instigator of the movement, and after giving a quarter of a million to sufferers, and turning his great factory into a commissary department to care for refugees, he headed the new list with a list of subscribers. He is the most popular man today in the state of Ohio.

THE FUN BEGINS.

With Mayor Fathens a candidate to succeed himself, and two other aspirants for his position already avowed candidates in the race, the real fun of the recall election period has begun. Mr. Fathens is already nominated and will not have to enter the scramble for the primary nomination. The appearance of two candidates in the field to oppose him means a primary, or elimination election.

With the vote on the issuing of the $38,000 worth of bonds, July 2, a primary election a few days later, and then the recall election July 22, Janesville will have a busy month of it. The issues of the present recall campaign have not changed one jot or tittle since the original petition was filed. The voters understand this fully by now and there is really no need to go into a bill of particulars to impress upon them. They will act accordingly. No matter what platform Mr. Fathens' opponents stand on, behind them are the element who desire a wide open town and a return to the conditions that existed here previous to the general clean-up last fall. If Janesville wants these conditions, if Janesville desires to return to the rule of the small coterie of citizens who for years have controlled affairs to suit themselves; they will vote to oust Mr. Fathens. If they stand for a bigger and better Janesville they will endorse his actions by giving him their vote of confidence and support. It is as plain as the nose on your face and it is up to the voters to decide. The majority rules.

The dispatches from Washington yesterday stated that Senator La Follette will talk for a week on the tariff question. That ought to help some. The extra session of congress is long on talk and a long-suffering people are praying for adjournment. What the country needs more than anything else is a breathing spell. This is especially true of the people of Wisconsin. There are times when talk is cheap, but it is proving mighty expensive to the country just now.

The boy of fourteen, who entered the Joliet penitentiary yesterday to serve a life sentence for murder, is a sad comment on Illinois justice; unless the lad was hopelessly incorrigible.

The "Mary Ann" farce will continue to be a feature of the primary law because it is a hobby of La Follette, and the peculiar mission of the state senate is to protect his hobbies. The seat of state government is not in Madison, as many people suppose.

Paris clubmen are insisting that duels should be conducted in privacy. The most appropriate way to conduct a French duel would be by telephone.

Before making up your mind to go to Europe this summer just pause and reflect that you can find as much comfort in traveling and as insanitary conditions right here at home.

"A New York man saved $100,000 in seventeen years on a salary of $1,000 a year." Waiter or policeman?

An indignant woman points out that men's bathing suits are more immodest than women's. But then the more that is seen of a man the less there is to admire in him.

Investigating itself may not be a pleasant task, but probably the senate likes it better than voting on the tariff.

The case of Porter Charlton is useful as a reminder that even the deliberations of the supreme court are finite.

POSING FOR PICTURE

Summer Heat Claims First Victim

When he was a high school graduate, Assembled in Photograph Gallery.

Fatigued as the result of the nervous strain of commencement week, two members of the high school graduating class fell victims to the excessive heat while posing for the senior class picture in a local photograph gallery at noon today. The students assembled at ten o'clock but several were late in arriving which made necessary a long wait which was too much for two of the students owing to the oppressive heat. It required some time to revive them sufficiently to undergo the ordeal of the photographer's camera.

TENT FOR INVALID WANTED BY THE VISITING NURSE

Miss Anderson, the visiting nurse, has a case which needs immediate attention. It is a little eleven year old boy who is making a fight for his very existence against the dread white plague. He must live out of doors and a tent, a nine by twelve if possible is needed at once. Any one having such a tent they will donate in saving the life of this little chap will not have to cast their bread upon the waters uselessly. Miss Anderson secured the stove needed for the family appealed for last week and also a dollar donation from a young lady in Brooklyn who read the appeal. Fifty cents was donated by another gentleman to transport the stove and a check for five dollars also was received to aid in the work. Even today, one room of school children made an offering of fifty cents for fruit for the dying man. The present case is most pitiful and the tent is needed immediately. Either communicate with Miss Anderson directly or send word to the Gazette office and the tent will be called for.

TRIED TO ESCAPE BY CUTTING BAR

It has been learned that Bert Kroner, the young man who pleaded guilty to the theft of the automobile of Thomas Steele of the town of Union, and was taken to Waupun prison Wednesday to serve a four and one-half year sentence attempted to escape while held in the county jail here. One of the other prisoners saw him cutting a window bar with an old knife he picked up and notified the sheriff. He had been locked up in the common room only about fifteen minutes when discovered, but had cut into the bar about an eighth of an inch.

MUZZLING OF DOGS

MAY BE REQUIRED

City Council May Take Such Action in View of Number of Persons Who Have Been Bitten

Orders that all dogs running at large shall be muzzled may soon be issued by the city council in view of the fact that a number of persons have recently been bitten by vicious dogs and the nuisance of masterless and homeless canines has assumed proportions so as to call for many protests from citizens. Recently Mildred Harford, the seven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Harford, was bitten in the right arm by a vicious dog and a short time previous Mrs. Lillian Eddy was severely bitten by another. Mail carriers, paper carriers, delivery boys, and pedestrians have also been annoyed and some of them attacked. Most of the complaints have come from the Fourth and Fifth wards where dogs seem to be unusually numerous.

Power to compel the muzzling of dogs is given the council by Chapter XI of the revised general ordinances. Such order shall become effective after it is published in the official paper of the city. It shall be the duty of the chief of police, and of such persons as are authorized by him, to kill all dogs running at large and not so muzzled after the expiration of three days from the date of the first publication of any such order.

The owner of any dog found running at large, contrary to the provisions of the ordinance, shall forfeit and pay to the city a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars nor less than one dollar for each day during which such violation shall continue.

It is not improbable that the council will within a short time enact an ordinance requiring the payment of dog licenses by the owners of dogs. The proceeds from this source will go into the pension funds of the firemen and policemen.

FIVE YEAR PRISON SENTENCE PASSED UPON TWO BURGLARS

William King and Joseph Kelley, Arrested in Beloit Yesterday, Plead Guilty to Robbing the Munn Home.

Five years in the state's prison at Waupun was the sentence passed upon William King and Joseph Kelley by Judge Charles Fifield this morning on their pleading guilty to the charge of burglarizing the home of Dr. W. A. Munn, 327 South Main street, on Wednesday night, June 11. They were taken to Waupun by Sheriff C. S. Whipple on the north-bound Northwestern train that left at 12:55 o'clock this afternoon.

King and Kelley had a goodly portion of the stolen property on their person when arrested in Beloit yesterday afternoon by Patrolman Patrick Fanning, and realized from the first that they stood no chance of escaping the consequences of their act by entering a plea of "not guilty" and undergoing the examination to which the law entitles them. Accordingly they waived their right to an examination and petitioned for an immediate trial.

When asked if there was any reason why sentence should not be passed upon King had no more to say than that he and his accomplice were in an intoxicated condition at the time of the robbery. In response to the questions of the judge he said that his home was in England and that he came to the United States five years ago. He claimed to be a great many places. Both men declared that they had never been committed for any previous crime.

Nearly all of the property stolen from the home of Dr. Munn was recovered. Fifteen of the twenty-one dollars stolen had been spent, and two or three small pieces of jewelry were missing. These had probably been pawned by the robbers. Dr. Munn was in court when sentence was passed upon them.

It was learned that the burglars came upon the porch at the home of John Baker, 238 South Main street, on the evening of the robbery, but their presence was discovered and they were chased away.

Margaret, aged seven years, was playing housekeeper. As she pretended to wipe the perspiration from her face she turned from the toy washboard upon which was rinsing out a handkerchief, and, addressing her brother, a year younger, said: "There you are sitting at your ease and me breaking my bones doing your washing."

NEW MAYORALTY CANDIDATE.

I wish to announce to the voters of Janesville my candidacy for the nomination for the office of Mayor of the City of Janesville at the primaries.

It has been reported that I was not going to be a candidate, but that report was erroneous.

This campaign was not entered upon without careful thought on my part, and I only consented to run for the office after giving the matter serious consideration and at the request of my friends, believing I could help my fellow man and assist in placing the city of Janesville in the place where it belongs—the leading and most progressive city in southern Wisconsin. I will stand on my record as a business man and the one year I served as mayor of the city. Your support is urged and will be appreciated.

WOMAN TAKEN INTO COURT ON INTOXICATION CHARGE

Case Against Mrs. Lulu James Adjudged On Her Promise To Give Cause For No More Complaints.
The trial of Mrs. Lulu James on the charge of intoxication was adjourned until July 17 by Judge Field this morning on her promise to give cause for no further complaint as to her actions by neighbors on Ringold street. A plea of "not guilty" was entered for her by Attorney John L. Fisher, who stated that she was a hard working woman who had been left to support herself and little boy because deserted by her husband. He asked the court to be lenient with her. James Owen, guilty of drunkenness, went to jail for fifteen days in lieu of a fine of $10 and costs.

The SONG of a SUFFRAGET

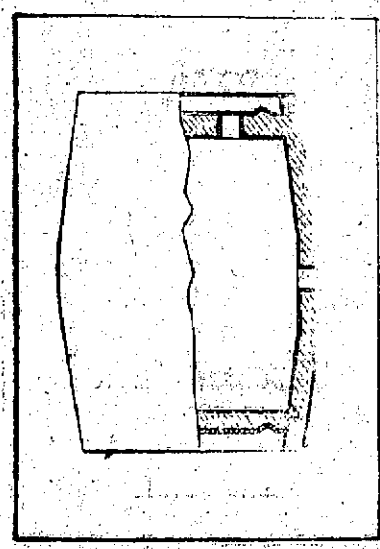

"Oh, I'm a fighting suffraget;
(Her voice it thrilled with pride)
But as I can't be denied,
I rose this morn at break of day,
While all was still and calm,
And armed myself for bloody fray
With brodifax, brick and bomb.
At eight my first real triumph came,
Thanks to my damsel for my name,
The home of old Lord What's-His-Name
Is now a pleasing sight."

At ten the premier's neck I wrung
And kicked him down a stairs;
Then to a lofty beam I hung
Him by his stiffened hairs.
The Thames flowed by; upon its bank
There stood an old M. P.
All trembling to his knees he sank
And pier began to mutter:
His plaintive cries for help arose
Above the city's din.
How swift, how dark that river flows!
But then, I pushed him in.
"At two I blew the city hall
Among the clouds so high,

CONCRETE KEG

Infinitely Stronger Than Ordinary Form of Cask.
A Wisconsin man has patented a concrete keg, and as may be readily imagined, it is very much stronger than the types of cases we are familiar with. A thing has a tubular case surrounding it laterally. Between the case and the thing and extending across the end of the latter is another body, one end of which forms a chime. Around the inner face of the chime is a flange ring, with apertures disposed radially. One of these apertures extends across the chime and the other overties that part of the body which is extended across the end of the thing. Between this large and the body just mentioned, the head of the keg is located. To say that a keg constructed on such principles will withstand a lot of mauling is putting it mildly.

MADE IN THREE PARTS

The Holy Spirit

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D.D.
Dean of the Moody Bible Institute
Chicago

TEXT: "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" Acts XIX, 2.

Paul met certain disciples in Ephesus whom at first he supposed to be Christian disciples, but in whose testimony there was that which led to the inquiry, "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" It is evident, therefore, from these words and from the sense that it is one thing to be a disciple, and another thing to "receive the Holy Ghost." This brings up the whole question as to the relation of the Holy Spirit to the disciple, or the believer in Christ.

1. The personality of the Holy Spirit. We should keep in mind that the Holy Spirit is a divine person. Personality consists in self-consciousness and free will, and that the Holy Spirit possesses personality in this sense is evident from three things: (a) He has the attributes of personality; (b) He does the works of a personality; (c) He has the names of a personality. Speaking of his attributes, there is one which, more than any other, helps to a realization of his personality. His attribute of love, which is referred to only in Romans 15:30. Do you know that the Holy Spirit loves you, as a believer in Christ, with a love in some sense distinct from that either of the Father or the Son? How marvelously near that brings him to our hearts! The Father's love manifested itself in the giving of his Son; the Son's love in the offering of himself upon the cross, and the Holy Spirit's love in taking up his abode in us.

2. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit. This brings us to the second thought, viz., the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. That indwelling was promised in John 14:16-17. He had dwelt "with" the disciples therefore, but he was to dwell "in them" by and by. He had been as a power acting on them from without, but thereafter he was to influence them from within. The promise was renewed again in Acts 1:4-5, where the indwelling was spoken of as the "baptism" of the Holy Spirit. The realization came on the day of Pentecost, when the disciples were gathered, baptized and indwelt with the Holy Spirit at one and the same time.

This transaction, however, as far as the first two terms are concerned, was not limited to the church assembled on that day, but applies to the whole church since. Such would seem to be suggested by I. Corinthians, 12:12-14, where 20 years after Pentecost we are taught that as believers "we were all baptized by one Spirit into one body." What "body" is means if not the body of Christ, the church? And what "baptism" if not that "one baptism" on the day of Pentecost?

3. The filling of the Holy Spirit. But while the first two terms of that transaction on the day of Pentecost, the indwelling and the baptism (which are one), were for the whole church potentially, and for all time, yet the same does not apply to the third, the filling of the Holy Spirit. There is but one indwelling, but many fillings. We gather this from Acts 5:31, where the same persons who were "filled" on the day of Pentecost, were "re-filled," in Acts 6, when men are to be chosen to the office of deacon. It must be by those who are "full of the Holy Spirit," as if some were thus spiritually equipped while others were not. It is something corresponding to this, therefore, which Paul has in mind in our text, when he said: "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" The reception of the Holy Ghost on their part resulted in an endowment of power, but in other places of the Acts, notably the fourth chapter, it is seen to have resulted not only in the spirit of power, but of unity and love. It is this that we ministers, evangelists and Christian workers need and that the whole church needs in order to accomplish her mission for Jesus Christ on earth.

How may the fillings of the Holy Spirit be received by the believer on the Lord Jesus Christ? Prayer, obedience and faith seem to be the only conditions, if they may be called conditions. Speaking of faith, there is a sense in which the gift of the Holy Spirit, i. e., the filling of the Holy Spirit, should be received by as definite an act on our part as that by which we laid hold of salvation through Jesus Christ; but this faith is not likely to be experienced where obedience is not present. "God giveth the Holy Ghost to them that obey him," Peter says (Acts V), and this agrees perfectly with the teaching of the Old Testament in Proverbs 1:1. "Turn ye at my reproof, behold, I will pour out my spirit unto you." Nor is this obedience merely occasional with some great thing, but it is to be usual and common in the little things.

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul. CONTINUE CRUSADE AGAINST ACCIDENTS

St. Paul Officials Issue Orders to Local Employees Aiming to Decrease Accidents.

The general "safety first" committee of the St. Paul railroad have been active during the last month and have issued orders to the railroad employees of every division throughout the system. The orders were made out from twelve things that cause the greatest number of accidents and the local employees of the road have received the orders and they were bulletined at the roundhouse. The most important rules laid down by the committee are as follows:

Trucks of all kinds are to be kept at a safe distance from the tracks, properly secured, when they are not in use and the baggage men are instructed to avoid the trucks along platforms while passengers are getting off and on trains; also they are to be put a safe distance from the tracks when the train leaves the station.

The section foreman is to occupy a position of the engineer's side of a passenger train and give the entire train a thorough looking over for dragging brake beams or rods. If he discovers any that is in his judgment are dangerous to the safety to the passengers, he should signal the engineer and the repairs should be made at once.

Engineers are cautioned not to blow off steam on the road when it is unnecessary.

The loose wires used to secure stakes on flat or gondola cars should be removed before the cars are billed. Agents should take this matter up with the shippers.

Inflammable placards should be removed from cars when empty. Refrigeration doors on cars should be securely fastened or hooked when they are left open.

Engineer Harker and Fireman Voben doubleheaded passenger train number twentyone to Chicago this morning to bring back another engine for repairs. They took engine number 402.

The switching service on the M. P. Division has been divided up in the following manner: Engine 1180, Engineer James and Fireman McAdams, and Engineer Kennaugh and Fireman Eberts taking the night run. Engine 434, Engineer Faler and Fireman Inman, day crew; Engineer Wilber and M. Siebert, relief crew; Engineer Callahan and Fireman Stenz are working on switch engine 115.

Engines 421-4, 422-3 are ready for service on the Racine and Southwest ern division.

Fireman Folger is laying off on the C. and M. Division.

The members of the safety committee hope to minimize the number of smaller injuries to their employees by having the rules observed and by correcting the little habits that result in numberless serious accidents will be averted.

Engines 4000, 4320, 436 are ready for service after being overhauled.

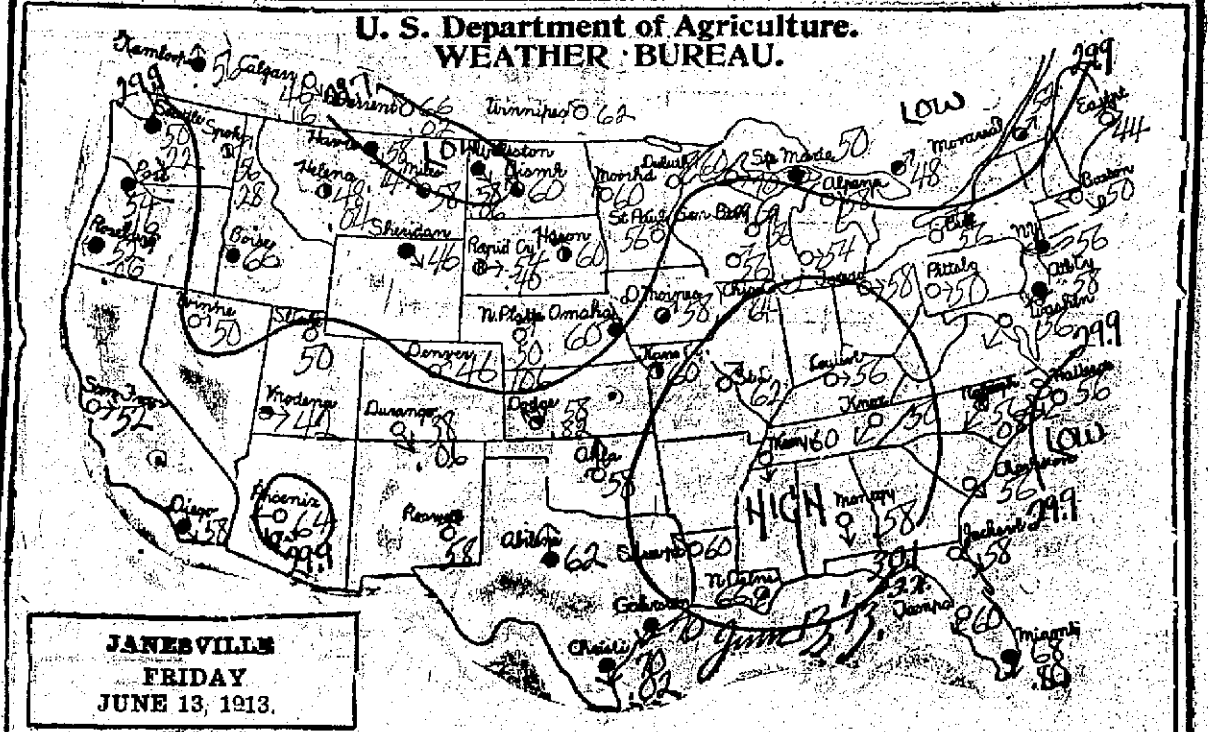

Engines 2168, 1021, 493 are laid up on the Mineral Point division for repairs.

Engineers Kuelling, Allen, Dupstead Mahoney, A. Wilkinson are laying off on the M. P. Division.

Fireman Dalman with Engineer Doure, went out on way freight to Chicago this morning.

Engineer Wright is replacing Engineer Allen on the "dog run" to Milton and return.

A Soliloquy.
To mote or not to mote—that is the question:
Whether it is nobler in the mind to suffer,
And walk or hike or hire a horse
Or take up arms against a sea of troubles,
Of carburetors, oil pumps and tires
That puncture,
Of gasoline that's boosted to the
Or is it best to walk and never know
Or travel in the hot and dusty tram
Thus not invited and thereby escaping
The heartache and the thousand natural shocks
That cars are heir to. 'Tis a consummation,
Perhaps, devoutly to be wished.

From the Hickeyville Clarion.
Our old friend Doc Simmers is suffering much pain these days. He sent to a mail order house for some false teeth and they sent him a set of women's teeth by mistake, and Doc did not know the difference until he put them in his mouth, and his jaws commenced to flop up and down and they have flopped so fast ever since that Doc can't catch a hold to get them out, and he's pretty near done for.

"No doubt," replied the Thin Man.
"Everybody thinks he has."
"I was driving along the other day," continued the Fat Man, "when I noticed that the engine sort of bucked and didn't run well at all and I couldn't get as much power as I should have. I noticed it for a week or two. I drove into a garage and the man looked into my gasoline tank and said it was as dry as bone. Furthermore he told me that he hadn't a drop of gasoline in that tank for two weeks. I had been running on air all that time and never knew it. No wonder she bucked. Now I suppose you will say that I haven't got some car. What?"
"That's nothing at all," said the Thin Man. "I drove into a garage the other day to see what was the matter with my car and the man looked all around for the gasoline tank and couldn't find it. He said, 'Why, man alive, there isn't any gasoline tank on this car.' They forgot to put one in at the factory and he told the truth. I had been running that car ever since February 15 without any gasoline tank in it at all."

Jacob Before Pharaoh. Gen. xlii:28-xlii:31.

Golden Text—To them that love God all things work together for good. Rom. viii:28.

(1) Verse 28—How do you account for the fact that in most families of boys, with the same parentage and environment, that one or two stand out when compared with the rest conspicuous for leadership and ability?

(2) How old was Jacob when he emigrated with his family to Goshen, in Egypt, and how many of them went there?

(3) Verse 29—Women kiss and embrace each other, fathers embrace their younger sons and daughters, why, therefore, is it not fitting and right for men who love one another to do the same thing? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(4) Verse 30—How would you describe the feelings of Jacob on meeting Joseph and the great emotion which made him want to die?

(5) Would you say that very good old men, when their hearts are filled with joy, would prefer to die?

(6) Verses 31-34—In what way can you show the wisdom of Joseph in informing Pharaoh of the arrival of his father and brethren?

(7) What particular significance was there in being careful to tell Pharaoh that they were shepherds?

(8) Why were shepherds "an abomination unto the Egyptians?"

(9) Chapter xlii:1-2—On what principle would Joseph be likely to select the five brothers to represent the rest before Pharaoh?

(10) Would Joseph's selection be any reflection on the other brothers who were not selected to appear before Pharaoh?

(11) Of two brothers, both good men and equal in industry, one with twice the ability of the other, which is entitled to the greater praise and why?

(12) Verses 3-4—Providing it is honest, why should no man be ashamed of his occupation?

(13) What policy had the five brothers in mind when they asked Pharaoh's permission to dwell in Goshen, seeing he had invited them to come and dwell there?

(14) Verses 5-6—What motives were at work in Pharaoh, or what influence was being brought to bear on him to stir such great generosity in him?

(15) Which was under the greater obligation to the other, and why, Pharaoh or Joseph?

(16) Verses 7-10—What do you understand by the expression "and Jacob blessed Pharaoh," and what effect would such a blessing have?

(17) Has a man of God today the same authority to bless another man as Jacob had, and will the blessing be equally effective? Give your reasons.

(18) Verses 11-12—Was Joseph under any moral or other obligation to act this generous part toward his father and brethren? Why?

(19) What is your opinion of the man, who with the ability to help permits his parents and members of their family to suffer want?

(20) Verses 28-31—Why is death to an aged good man as natural as going to sleep when we are tired?

(21) How do you account for it that Jacob was not content until Joseph had sworn to bury him in the burying ground of his fathers?

Dinner Stories

On his eighty-fourth birthday, Paul Smith, the veteran Adirondack hotelkeeper, who started life as a guide and died owning a million dollars' worth of forest land, was talking about boundary disputes with an old friend.

"Didn't you hear of the lawsuit over a title that I had with Jones down in Malone last summer?" asked Paul. The friend had not heard.

"Well," said Paul, "it was this way. I sat in the courtroom before the case opened, with my witnesses around me. Jones hustled in, stopped, looked at my witnesses over carefully, and said: 'They are, those your witnesses?'"

"They are," said I. "Then you win," said he. "I've had them witnesses twice myself."

"I wish I was a star," the dude sighed, smiling at his own poetic fancy.

"I would rather you were a comet," she said, dreamily.

His heart beat tumultuously.

And why? he asked, tenderly, at the same time taking her unresisting little hand in his own. "And why?" he repeated, imperiously.

"Oh," she said, with a brooding earnestness that fell freezing upon his soul, "because then you would come around only once in fifteen years."

And he took his hat and went out into the shimmering moonlight.

Get rid of your old furniture by and worth all it costs.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher

BY WALT MASON

The latest book of Mr. Gush has made a killing, grand, and to the bookstore people rush, with money in each hand. "We want this best of Gush's works," they cry, "and here's the money." And so the sad, soul weary clerks dispense it by the ton. The village library's in a stew, for all the dames are there; they want that book—none else will do—and they are pulling hair in street cars, in the busy mart, and in the social crush, they heart about that book by Gush. And all the lonesome low brow dubs discuss it in the street; and women, at their culture clubs, read extracts and repeat, "You hear of it from every bore, and in the evening's bustle you sadly sit before your door and curse the name of Gush. And then the talk all dies away, as sudden as it rose; a new best seller is in away, and Gush turns up his toes. If in the bookstore you should look, next month, for Gush's work, "We never heard of such a book," will say the weary clerk. Today a book may be a scream that holds the public mind; it passes like a winter dream and leaves no trace behind.

THE BEST SELLER

My little grandson was told by his mother to run across the street and inquire of a lady who was going by with three little babes in a cart if they were triplets. He soon came back, looking much disappointed, and said: "No, they are not triplets. They were born the same day, but two of them are girls and the other one is a boy."

Not Triplets.

GIVE BAND CONCERT AT RIVERVIEW PARK

Musicans of Moose Lodge Gave First Of Series of Entertainments Last Evening.

Riverview Park presented a holiday appearance last evening, the occasion being the first of a series of concerts, the Moose band has kindly consented to give in the park. The band stand over which floated the national flag, was brightly illuminated with small electric lights and many of the residents had illuminated their porches, which greatly added to the national beauty of the spot. The music tendered was much appreciated by the many who thronged the lawn, as well as the occupants of the long line of autos and buggies that arrived from all directions during the evening. Special thanks for such an enjoyable concert are due to Mr. Richards and Mr. H. McCarthy for their enterprise in making a house to house call for donations to the subscribers who are ready to give their aid, and to the band who so willingly gave their services at a minimum cost. The next concert will be announced at a later date.

MATRIMONIAL.

Bates-Kothlow.

On Tuesday, June 10th, occurred the wedding of Miss Roxie Bates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edith Bates of Porter, to George Kothlow of Jefferson.

At high noon the bride accompanied by her sister, Wilna, and the groom accompanied by his brother, John, marched down the winding stairs to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, which was played by Emma Bates, a cousin of the bride. They took their places in the spacious parlor under a beautifully decorated arch of yellow and white roses. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Schoenfeldt of Edgerton.

The bride was gowned in white net over light blue silk and the bridesmaid wore a dress of blue calico. After the ceremony the bridal party and guests entered the dining room which was decorated with white carnations and smilax and partook of an elaborate four course dinner, which was served by six young ladies, the Misses Fannie Dooley, Edith Kapp of Janesville, Edith Linvold of Edgerton, Lucile Barle, Blanche Wheeler and Mayme Ford of Porter.

The out of town guests were Chas. Kothlow and daughters, Elizabeth and Dorothy; Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Yahn, Mr. and Mrs. Leoder of Jefferson; Mr. W. F. Conway and daughter, Bessie of Troy; Mr. and Mrs. John Copley of Edgerton; Stephen Dooley and daughter of Janesville.

The bride is one of the popular young ladies of Porter, a graduate of the 1906 class of the Edgerton high school and since then has been engaged in teaching school. The groom is a very industrious young man. After receiving many beautiful presents, Mr. and Mrs. Kothlow went to their furnished home in Newville, where the groom has been employed for the last five years in the creamery.

SIDEWALK SKETCHESRETRIBUTION.

By Howard L. Rann.

RETRIBUTION is something which overtakes the evil doer in after life and refuses to let him cash in on his church membership. Since and he came unfashionable to preach eternal punishment is the only thing which prevents the opening. This is caused by the several strains of obituary poetry, and a half tone poet.

It sometimes happens that retribution will dog a man around for years before it finds a good opening. This is caused by the neighbors to question the wonder-working ways of Providence.

Retribution sometimes lights on its victims with a speed that is terrifying. Many a man has been given the advice of his physician and eaten two dozen Little Neck clams, garnished with tobacco sauce and a hard-boiled egg, only to be overtaken inside of fifteen minutes with a retributive attack of pneumonia poisoning.

If people could see retribution heading their way, lugging a hot water bottle and a gross of calomel pills, there would be less genteel gorging at six o'clock dinners.

Retribution that is long delayed causes a feeling of security and perfect peace that makes a man reluctant to dig up his old tax receipts.

That is the kind of retribution that which follows a man who is too small are usually attacked by retribution later in life and decorated with uneasy combs.

The way to escape retribution is to practice the square deal as well as preach it.

"My wife had been suffering from weak stomach accompanied by sick headaches nearly all her life. She is invariably relieved of these when she sticks to Grape-Nuts, either eaten dry or with milk. Her stomach has gradually grown stronger and her headaches less frequent since she began to eat Grape-Nuts."

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

TOLERANCE is one of the finest qualities in the world, that is, when it is the right kind of tolerance. For there are two kinds. One is fathered by broad-mindedness and mothered by charity. The other is fathered by use and mothered by indifference—the kind that Pope described when he wrote:

"Vice is a monster of such frightful mien—as to be hated needs but to be seen. Yet seen too oft, familiar with her face, we first endure, then pity, then embrace."

All of which is a rather more grandiloquent and severe introduction than I meant to write for some very simple remarks.

Some two or three years ago a young girl in our neighborhood had a new evening gown made quite scant and with a small slit down the right side. The slit was not more than three or four inches in width and was filled in with accordion plaited chiffon. But my what a lot of talk that gown did create! For two or three days after the dance at which it made its debut, we talked of little else than sheath and split gowns. The conservatives raved about their immodesty and vowed never to countenance the fashion; the radicals engaged dressmakers and sent for patterns.

Today how much attention would such a gown excite?

None whatever.

The conservatives who raved about its immodesty are wearing evening gowns infinitely more immodest than themselves, and thinking nothing of it. Why? Simply because they have seen so much of this sort of thing that they have grown "tolerant" of it.

A gown split up to the knees is a commonplace in our streets today. It takes a gown split even further up to shock us now. One wonders, or rather one scoffs, at those who wonder; what it will take to shock us two or three years from now.

Doubtless you remember what a fuss was made about peek-a-boo waists when they first came in, and peek-a-boo then meant a waist with a few little eyelets through which one could not see the lingerie beneath unless one deliberately tried to. Today perfectly nice girls go about in waists of which the whole fabric is so thin that their lingerie is entirely visible to the most casual eye.

Really, when you come to think of it, it's quite remarkable how usage can blunt our feelings, isn't it?

Insofar as usage teaches us to consent to that which was objectionable only because it was new, this is a good tendency. But when it persuades us to tolerate things which are intrinsically wrong, it's a very bad tendency.

"All virtues by excess degenerate into vices," says an old philosopher, and tolerance is most emphatically no exception to that rule.

meanwhile, and serve very hot.

Strawberry Whipped Cream Pie.—One and one-half cups flour, sifted with one cup sugar, one-half teaspoon soda, one teaspoon cream of tartar and a little salt. Sift into your mixing bowl. Melt two tablespoons of butter in a cup. Drop in an egg and fill the cup with sweet milk. Turn this mixture into the flour, etc. Beat well, flavor with vanilla and bake in two layers. When cool fill with one cup thick sweet cream, whipped until stiff with one-half cup sugar and one half cup mashed strawberries folded in after whipping. Spread between layers and on top.

Spanish Rice.—Have ready a saucepan in which are two tablespoons of nice hot drippings. Throw in a half cup of well-washed rice and toast about until nicely browned. Add one sliced tomato, one sliced onion and a clove of garlic and brown slightly. Cover the whole with hot water, seasoned with salt and pepper. Cover and let the rice cook thoroughly, adding more water as needed. Do not stir, as the beauty of it lies in the plump brown unbroken kernels.

Pie Crust.—Sift two cups of flour and one-half cup of sugar into a bowl. Cut into this with a knife four tablespoons of lard. When thoroughly mixed stir in just enough ice water to hold dough together. Roll out on floured board and line pan. This will make the upper and lower crust for one pie.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

FINISH every day and be done with it. You have done what you could, some blunders and absurdities no doubt crept in; forget them as soon as you can. Tomorrow is a new day; you shall begin it with a new will and a new high spirit to be conquered with your old nonsense.

—Emerson.

NUTS AS FOOD.

The food value of nuts is beginning to be better appreciated, though many people have an idea that nuts are hard to digest. Nuts must be thoroughly masticated in order to be digested, and that is one reason why, after improper eating, they cause distress.

Pecans which are browned in a bit of butter, salted and then seasoned with a dash of red pepper are a delicious accompaniment to any dinner.

Nuts and fresh mushrooms are a combination worth trying. Sauté two tablespoons of chopped onion, and a half cup of mushrooms in four tablespoons of butter. Cook for five minutes, then stir in two tablespoons of flour, cook until smooth and add salt, pepper and a half cup of milk; stir and cook for five minutes, then add a cup of chopped nuts—either walnuts or pecans. Serve in ramekins or on buttered toast.

Delicious Nut Potatoes.—Here is something to try on your best friend. Choose rather small, even-sized potatoes, cut off the end and grease all over with olive oil. Bake in a hot oven, and when well done remove and carefully scoop out the inside from the cut end of the potato; mash this and season well with salt, cream, or melted butter; add a half cup of chopped nuts, beat until light and puffy, then fold in the beaten whites of two eggs. Refill the shells with this, return to the oven to reheat and brown on top.

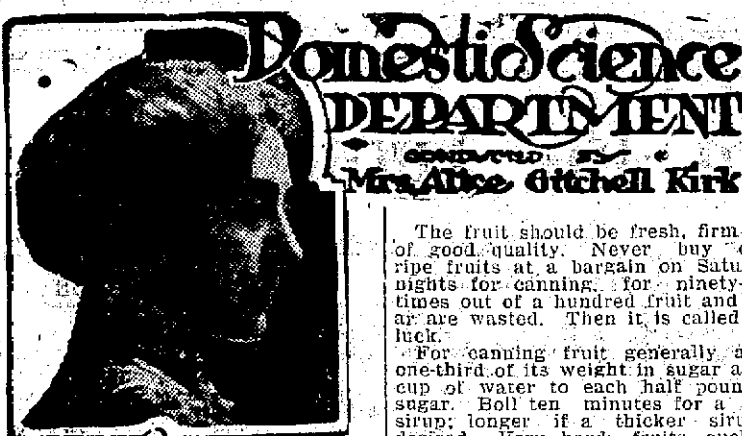

An Attractive Salad.—Arrange head lettuce in individual salad bowls, place a few slices of cucumber in the head, sprinkle with chopped nuts (even pecans are good for this salad), a suggestion of minced onion or the juice added to the French dressing with which this salad is served. Prepare the dressing by using one part of vinegar to three of oil, mix well, add a half teaspoonful of salt to each three tablespoons of oil, a dash of tabasco and a little Worcestershire.

A pretty way to serve nuts and celery is to heap the nuts in the center of a plate and arrange stalks of tender celery stuffed with seasoned cream cheese radiating from the nuts.

Nellie Maxwell

Would Not Survive Loss of Love.

Wives have been won more than once by the toss of a coin, but never under more dramatic conditions than the following: Two Genoa woodcarvers, who were rival suitors for the hand of a pretty little milliner, decided to leave their fate to the decision of a coin spun in the air. When the fateful coin fell and Signor Nizza saw that he had lost, he produced a revolver and shot himself through the head, falling dead at his successful rival's feet.

It is Time to Can Pineapple.

This is the season for canning or any other preservation of the pineapple. It is universally liked by every one, whether simply as canned fruit or as part of desserts such as puddings, cakes or pies. The flavor always adds to punch or any of the simple beverages or frozen creams. So it is always wise to have a can or two of it in the house ready for emergency.

It is usually canned, sliced, shredded, grated or chopped. In the latter ways of canning they are ready at once for making ices, sherbets or fancy desserts.

There are a few utensils which add much to the ease of canning. There is no utensil which can take the place of a steam cooker, as canning and sterilization may all be done by the steam process. The heat turned off and the jars allowed to cool before handling. One or two large bowls should be ready for the prepared fruit and a roll of paper toweling near to be used for covering the fruit if it has to stand exposed for a moment to the flying spores in the room.

Fruit Should Be Fresh.

This is meant for all fruits, as some are more susceptible to spores than others. Scales for weighing, a silver fork and tinned are used in filling the jars. Canning fruit in one serving sterilizer fruit in sterilized air-tight jars, the sugar only being added for the desired sweetness.

Every Day Talks For Every Day People...

I received a letter from a woman reader of this paper a few days back asking me if I would not kindly tell her how much I thought a family of father, mother and four small children ought to be able to live on and keep a steady income.

She told me her husband's income, the amount they paid for rent, and asked me if I might suggest to her a judicious expenditure of her husband's salary.

The husband is a steady, hardworking man, and as I read her letter telling me some of the ways and means she employed to stay inside her income I decided that she was a hard working woman. A very energetic, capable person.

It isn't always the ones that work the hardest that are the best managers. Many of us carry the idea that if we work hard all day we are bound eventually to get along.

So many women make the mistake of hustling all day every minute, because they will tell you their husband is away at work toiling steadily all the day.

At six o'clock generally the husband can quit work, he's free to come home and in a case like this—put his work entirely out of his mind until the next day.

Not so the wife and mother. She has kept busy all day and at six o'clock she cannot lay aside her burden of care. It's often nine, or half past before she can take a minute for herself. Then she is so utterly weary that she doesn't want to read; she doesn't want to talk, and if John tries to draw her into conversation (oftentimes out of pity for her) she is apt to make him think they are living near the North Pole. Figuratively speaking of course.

If such a mother would look her life squarely in the face, would she not begin to plan to run her home by system.

How long would a factory make good financially if they employed the haphazard methods some women use in their homes?

Myself I think that wherever I might have to live I would have all the fresh air and sunlight I could possibly get. I do a reasonable day's work, (the most of it would pertain to the present and future welfare of John and the children) get out of doors every day and slack up in my work in the afternoon so as not to be all tagged out at six o'clock.

If I were a man I wouldn't give a continental damn if the parlor of my house was as empty as the attic, but I would want a cozy living-room and a room for the children to play in. I wouldn't care if there was a little

The fruit should be fresh, firm and of good quality. Never buy over-ripe fruits at a bargain on Saturday nights for canning. For ninety-nine times out of a hundred fruit and sugar are wasted. Then it is called bad luck.

For canning fruit generally allow one-third of its weight in sugar and a cup of water to each half pound of sugar. Boil ten minutes for a thin syrup; longer if a thicker syrup is desired. Very hard fruits, such as sliced pineapple, quinces, etc., should be steamed first.

Canning Pineapple.—Slice the pineapple on half inch thick and remove the skin and eyes. Cut to fit the jars in which they are to be canned. Make the syrup; steam the slices until tender in the steamer, fill the sterilized jars with the pineapple and fill to overflowing with boiling syrup; seal and stand aside to cool. Then tighten the tops as much as possible.

If the pineapple is ripe and of the sugar loaf variety, it may be put at once into sterilized jars with the syrup, screwing the covers on only a little and steam for ten minutes. Then seal tight.

Grated Pineapple.—Peel and grate the pineapples, add the given amount of sugar without any water, partly seal and steam for ten minutes. Then seal tight.

Pineapple and Strawberries (Cold Process).—Peel and shred the pineapple in small pieces with a silver fork and steam until just tender, then add the given amount of sugar, cover and set in the refrigerator over night. Wash and hull the berries, add the same proportion of sugar, cover and set in the refrigerator over night. Sterilize the jars and set them there also, upside down.

In the morning when the kitchen is perfectly clean and dusted, fill the jars, seal and set in a cool, dark place.

dust around and some disorder but I would want my wife's face unclouded, unworried and serene.

It is the atmosphere of a home that counts and the wife and mother who works for the welfare of her husband and children rather than to have a spotless house is the woman who gives to the world its smartest, most dependable man and woman.

When we mothers of today are grandmothers, which knowledge, will be the most comforting to us?

"That we had the cleanest house in the block or 'country-side' or, that as a companionable wife and a kind, understanding mother we were successful?"

I have answered the letter. I spoke of personally, as it was too pathetic to admit of a public answer.

If by any word of mine I can aid a little to solve some perplexing home problem I stand ready and willing to do so, especially regarding children, for were I the owner of an Aladdin lamp all the babies and the children in the world would be given a square meal.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

A KID IN THE HOUSE

Dear Mrs. Thompson:—(1) I am a young lady of twenty-two, not good looking nor attractive. I have no company at all and am very miserable. At times I get so blue and despondent that I seem that my heart will break.

Mrs. Thompson, I have had to work since I was eleven and have never had an opportunity to learn the art of making friends. I am of a very despondent disposition, very quiet. This may be due to my not having any friends.

When I go out with young folks I do not know what to talk about.

Can you please tell me what to do to overcome my troubles?

I am told that what I can read to enable me to learn something.

(2) I am extremely awkward in everything—speech, manner and all. Kindly advise me how to overcome this.

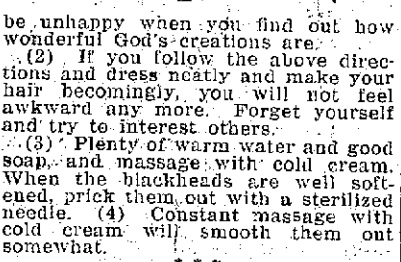

(3) What will remove pimples and blackheads? (4) Is there anything that will remove scars?

UNHAPPY.

(1) My dear girl, you write a good letter and I have no doubt that you are really as attractive as any other girl of your age, but you lack confidence in yourself. Make up your mind to be charming. Learn to smile and look sympathetic and don't be afraid to say pleasant things to people even if they don't seem to mean much—even if they sound flattering to you. You will find that it will bring you friends.

You should be proud that you are a worker. The world is made by workers, not by drones, and you should take a pride in your work, no matter what it is. Be proud of the despondency from you. Also, you want to remember that there are other people far worse off than yourself and that it's everybody's duty to add to the sunshine of the world. If everybody let themselves feel as you do, wouldn't this be a gloom, full old world?

Can you have a flower garden? Have you thought of studying nature? Go to the library and ask for some interesting nature books and try to get interested in them. You'll forget to be unhappy when you find out how wonderful God's creations are.

(2) If you follow the above directions and dress neatly and make your hair becomingly, you will not feel awkward any more. Forget yourself and try to interest others.

(3) Play of warm water and good soap, and massage with cold cream. When the blackheads are well softened, prick them out with a sterilized needle. (4) Constant massage with cold cream will smooth them out somewhat.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of seventeen years of age and have a boy friend away at college. He is going to graduate this June and I would like to write him a letter of congratulation and want to know if you would write one for me as soon as possible.

DELLA.

Just write him a friendly letter telling him how glad you are to hear of his successful graduation and that you are sure he will apply wisely to the knowledge he has gained at school in the work he will do out in the world. Wish him every success.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) What are the qualifications and requirements of a librarian? (2) What are the civil examinations like? (3) What one wants to send a picture of a child for the San Francisco exposition, to whom must we send it? (4) How is my writing? BELLE.

(1) One must be a high school graduate at least. The best preparation is to take the course in a college. (2) They are very much like school examinations. (3) Direct it to the Main Library of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, stating department to which you wish it delivered. (4) Yes.

The Table.

Plain Sponge Cake.—One cup sugar, yolks four eggs; beat to a cream; add one cup of flour, one tablespoon baking powder, four whites of eggs beaten to a froth added last. Bake.

When the onion is brown add potatoes and toss lightly with salt and pepper, occasionally until they are golden brown, then add the chopped parsley and vinegar or lemon juice. Serve very hot.

The Argyle Case

A Novelization by J. W. McConaughy of the Successful New Play by Harriet Ford, Harvey J. O'Higgins and Detective William J. Burns, in Which Robert Hilliard Is Appearing :: ::

Copyright, 1912, by Journal-American-Examiner.

He acted with great swiftness, as he felt there was great need. Not that he was alarmed—he felt that he was in no danger of being convicted of the murder, but he was anxious to keep his name out of unpleasant association with the crime for a number of perfectly manifest reasons and one that was not manifest—he was engaged to a very charming young woman, Miss Nancy Thompson. The engagement was a secret, but he was afraid that it would leak out and Miss Thompson's name and picture would be staring at the young girl from the front pages of the newspapers.

Within a few hours after the newspapers had taken this tack he was in consultation with Mr. Hurley. Mr. Hurley was a smoothly polished professional man of about forty, who maintained a handsome office, but practiced little in the courts apparently.

Young Argyle was not satisfied with the counsel of his father's lawyer. The latter advised ignoring the publicity that must inevitably attend the murder, doing all that lay within their power to aid the police and wait for results.

"I can't wait for results," declared Bruce. "This thing is getting on my nerves and on Mary's and Nancy's. For the sake of all of us it has to be cleared up right away."

"Well, I do not see that we can hurry matters any," said Mr. Hurley in his most soothing professional manner. "No, I guess you don't," returned Bruce, a little bitterly. "I don't either. But something has to be done."

"Wait, young man, wait," Mr. Hurley advised him. "The police will surely get on the right track within another day or two."

"The police," snorted Argyle. "They have been getting on the right track for nearly a week, and all they have done so far is make newspaper stories that are as ridiculous as they are offensive."

"The truth cannot hurt any one," mildly objected Mr. Hurley.

"Yes, it can, too," retorted Bruce. "It is true that I was the last person with my father and that I can't prove that I wasn't there when he was killed, and you bet that hurts like the dickens!"

"It does not prove that you killed him," remarked the lawyer, "and the burden of proof rests upon the state."

"Yes," broke in Bruce, with rising scorn. "I like the idea of going on for weeks this way in the position of the police not being able to prove that I killed my father! I want them to prove who did it—not me to prove that I didn't or anything else!"

"Well, I suppose they are trying as hard as they can," said Mr. Hurley. "Oh, yes, they're busy." Argyle laughed grimly. "Every time they have a spare man around headquarters they send him up to bother me or Mary and get us to tell everything all over again. Mary is nearly distracted. I suppose they'll be charging her with the murder in the newspapers pretty soon, and then I'll commit a murder that won't be any mystery!"

"Now, Bruce, don't excite yourself," counseled the lawyer. But he seemed uncomfortable at the mention of Miss Mazurek. "The truth may be unpleasant, as you say, but it can never do any harm."

Argyle frowned at the door and the lawyer played with a pen and waited. At last the young man looked up apparently calmed by a private resolve.

"Well," he said, with a grim undertone of threat in his voice, "I'll give the police—you have so much faith in them—a day longer, and then I'll take charge myself."

"The lawyer threw him a swift, keen glance. 'What are you planning to do?'" he asked.

"Never mind!" The young man's lips came together. "You and your friends, the police, have had nearly a week at this and haven't got anywhere excepting to make a lot of trouble for people who have trouble enough as it is. I am going to get action!"

"You had better do nothing without consulting me," advised Mr. Hurley earnestly.

"I have consulted you," retorted Argyle. "All you can advise me to do is wait and trust to the police. I have done both for a week. If they haven't got something by tomorrow morning I'll—"

He cut himself off and Mr. Hurley eagerly demanded, "What will you do?"

"Well, you'll see. There isn't any particular reason why I shouldn't tell you, and I will as soon as I decide, but when I do the investigation is going to be carried on under my directions."

"And with a nod to the lawyer he walked out."

On the way home he bought the final edition of an evening paper. His eye ran over the headline and he gasped and swore. It read:

"Argyle Murder Motive Found! Aged Millionaire Planned Change of Will! Adopted Daughter Now Sole Heir! Son Disinherited!"

There followed a detailed story of his reconciliation with his father—of his father's plan to put him back in his will as joint heir with his adopted sister and of the fact that the murder left him penniless and his adopted sister one of the richest heiresses in the world.

"Find the person whom the crime most benefits," said old Papa Tabaret, the greatest detective in fiction. Papa Tabaret was great because he was human and made mistakes. He nearly made a terrible mistake in following this axiom relentlessly, though he proved in the end that it worked out unfailingly. The weakness of it is the difficulty of ascertaining the number of persons who are benefited by the crime and the precise degree of gain to each. Thus it happens that a number of persons may be benefited in different ways by a murder. These persons may not know of the existence of each other, and the one who commits the crime may be deriving great benefit, but may also at the same time be benefiting others in a lesser and even greater degree. So here is another weakness of the axiom—that the one most benefited need not necessarily have guilty knowledge of the crime.

But in this case that weakness could be eliminated, as the newspapers subtly pointed out. Miss Mazurek knew the innermost secrets of the old man's mind. She knew of his quarrels with his son. She probably knew that the will had been made entirely in her favor. She was present at the reconciliation dinner, when it must have been known to all—as the lawyer had known for several days—that Mr. Argyle purposed writing a new will and leaving the larger share of his fortune to his natural child. This was to have been done within a few days at the outside, and he was murdered the same night.

So it was that in vague terms and indirect fashion, but none the less effectively, the newspapers pointed the faint finger of suspicion at Miss Mazurek. She had the most to gain by the millionaire's death—that was obvious—hence, argued the reporters, she doubtless could tell more if she wished. Perhaps, indeed, she actually possessed the solution of the mystery.

CHAPTER II.

Asche Kayton, Detective.

When Bruce Argyle had read through to the last line of this story, he pulled out his watch and glanced at it. It was a few minutes past 4 o'clock. He was at Twenty-third street in the subway. He got out, crossed the street and boarded a train down, changing to an express at Fourteenth street. A few minutes later he was being shot up to the eighteenth floor of a tall office building in the financial district. Leaving the elevator, he followed the runner's directions and found an office door that bore the simple inscription:

ASCHE KAYTON.

Entering he found himself confronted by an oldish boy on the opposite side of the railing. Inside the railing were the rugs, settles and chairs of a comfortable anteroom. It might have been the publishing office of a religious weekly.

The boy respectfully asked his name and whom he wished to see. Argyle handed him his card.

"Mr. Kayton," he said. The boy opened a gate in the railing and invited him to sit down. As Argyle sank on to a chair the boy disappeared. In less than sixty seconds one of the many doors opening off the anteroom swung back and a man entered holding the card.

The room then looked more than ever like the office of a church newspaper. The new comer was bareheaded, also insisted the young man bowed. Mr. Leischmann gazed past him and cleared his throat.

"I think Mr. Kayton is planning to leave town this evening, but you might be able to see him before he goes," he said.

"Leave town! For how long?" demanded Bruce.

"I can't say," replied the manager. "If you will excuse me a moment I will see if I can get Mr. Kayton on the phone."

The young man sidged in the anteroom for three or four minutes until the manager returned to him, smiling benevolently.

"Mr. Kayton does not leave for an hour," he said, "and he will be pleased to have you call at his hotel at once."

Bruce got the address and hastened out. Twenty minutes later he was inducted into the presence of the detective, whose remarkable successes had made two hemispheres ring with his name. He was credited with second sight and seventh sense and all sorts of things. He told reporters that there was nothing in his career but hard work, common sense and remembering that two and two always make four and never four and a half or three and three-quarters.

After they had shaken hands Bruce gazed at the great crime expert curiously. He saw a man of possibly forty years, who looked younger. He was shaved with scrupulous care, his hair was brushed until each hair seemed to fit into its exact spot, his clothes fitted him perfectly and he looked as if he had been groomed for hours. His eyes were either brown or black, but they glowed or smoldered or sparkled so constantly that no one could tell. His nose was well formed, but not prominent, and the same was true of the line of jaw and chin. The mouth was at once strong and sensitive. The expression was one of placid repose, as if it had been cultivated to conceal the whirl or the volcanic mind behind it, just as his subdued manner but imperfectly concealed the tireless energy of the man.

"I am sorry I can give you only a few minutes," he said in a soft, pleasant voice without waiting for Bruce to state the nature of his errand.

"You want to consult me about that terrible affair of your father. Did you want me to look into it?"

"Yes," Bruce blurted out. The detective nodded.

"I see," he said. "Very well. I have carte blanche as to expense?"

"Certainly," replied Bruce instantly. "If you can throw any light on this awful thing you can spend all the money you please."

Mr. Kayton's lips twitched very slightly. "There is never any difficulty under those circumstances, Mr. Argyle," he said. "The trouble is in getting people to pay expenses when they can't see results. I furnish no guarantees."

"Yes," replied Bruce, rising, somewhat nonplussed by this unexpected personage. "Mr. — He paused.

"I am Mr. Leischmann, the manager of Mr. Kayton's New York office. Was your business with Mr. Kayton personal?" The tone was pleasantly businesslike.

"I wanted to see Mr. Kayton at once, if possible," said Bruce. Mr. Leischmann nodded as if he fully understood.

"About the —?"

Bruce nodded. "Yes," he replied.

insisted the young man bowed. Mr. Leischmann gazed past him and cleared his throat.

"I think Mr. Kayton is planning to leave town this evening, but you might be able to see him before he goes," he said.

"Leave town! For how long?" demanded Bruce.

"I can't say," replied the manager. "If you will excuse me a moment I will see if I can get Mr. Kayton on the phone."

The young man sidged in the anteroom for three or four minutes until the manager returned to him, smiling benevolently.

"Mr. Kayton does not leave for an hour," he said, "and he will be pleased to have you call at his hotel at once."

Bruce got the address and hastened out. Twenty minutes later he was inducted into the presence of the detective, whose remarkable successes had made two hemispheres ring with his name. He was credited with second sight and seventh sense and all sorts of things. He told reporters that there was nothing in his career but hard work, common sense and remembering that two and two always make four and never four and a half or three and three-quarters.

After they had shaken hands Bruce gazed at the great crime expert curiously. He saw a man of possibly forty years, who looked younger. He was shaved with scrupulous care, his hair was brushed until each hair seemed to fit into its exact spot, his clothes fitted him perfectly and he looked as if he had been groomed for hours. His eyes were either brown or black, but they glowed or smoldered or sparkled so constantly that no one could tell. His nose was well formed, but not prominent, and the same was true of the line of jaw and chin. The mouth was at once strong and sensitive. The expression was one of placid repose, as if it had been cultivated to conceal the whirl or the volcanic mind behind it, just as his subdued manner but imperfectly concealed the tireless energy of the man.

"I am sorry I can give you only a few minutes," he said in a soft, pleasant voice without waiting for Bruce to state the nature of his errand.

"You want to consult me about that terrible affair of your father. Did you want me to look into it?"

"Yes," Bruce blurted out. The detective nodded.

"I see," he said. "Very well. I have carte blanche as to expense?"

"Certainly," replied Bruce instantly. "If you can throw any light on this awful thing you can spend all the money you please."

Mr. Kayton's lips twitched very slightly. "There is never any difficulty under those circumstances, Mr. Argyle," he said. "The trouble is in getting people to pay expenses when they can't see results. I furnish no guarantees."

If Lister had sold his discovery of the antiseptic dressing of wounds, would his name stand where it does among the immortals?—Toronto Globe.

"About the —?"

Bruce nodded. "Yes," he replied.

"Could you take the matter up with me or —?"

"I would be glad to see Mr. Kayton."

He was credited with Second Sight and All Sorts of Things.

Wald heided, and wore a dark office coat over a black vest and trousers. His face was round, his eyes round and pleasant, his cheeks slightly pink and his expression one of the utmost benevolence. But his mouth was thin lipped and opened very little when he spoke.

"Mr. Argyle?" he said, with a nod and a smile.

"Yes," replied Bruce, rising, somewhat nonplussed by this unexpected personage. "Mr. — He paused.

Baseball For Vacationists

Baseball is invaluable to America. It thrills and so rests tired nerves. It brings the "shut-in" man into God's healing out-of-doors. While yelling he swallows great draughts of lung-expanding, purifying air and forgets the fear of "taking cold." Baseball absolutely pulls the brain from business; it emphasizes the value of decency and gives healthy and high toned recreation to millions. If kept clean, it's good-doing cannot be measured. Nothing is worth while that does not do that.
